Associate Prof. Kassian T.T. Amesho
Education for Sustainable Development (ESD), UNAM

ABOUT THE SEMINAR

In today's academic landscape, research and international collaboration are vital for institutional growth and career progression. Having spent the last 10 years abroad studying and working in India, South Korea, Taiwan, and France, Associate Professor Kassian Amesho brings a wealth of experience in scientific research publication, collaboration, and funding acquisition.

This seminar will explore:

- Lessons from global research institutions – what Namibia and UNAM can adopt.
- Fostering a research-driven culture at UNAM – overcoming common challenges.
- Strategies for securing research funding – leveraging international opportunities.
- The power of collaboration – building strong research networks within and beyond UNAM.
- Guidance for early-career researchers – elevating academic careers through scientific publishing and strategic partnerships.

This session is ideal for academics, early-career researchers, and postgraduate students looking to enhance their research productivity, funding prospects, and global collaboration strategies.
